UTAH A FAMOUS TOURIST STATE

Hundred Thousand Families Visited Salt Lake This Season.

RAILROADS ARE WAKING UP

UTAH AND SALT LAKE TO BE WIDELY ADVERTISED.

During the season just drawing to a close. Utah has taken a tremendous leap forward as a summer excursion state. The result has been that the passenger agents of the lines reaching late the west are considering plans to the west are considering plans to the west are considering plans to the mumber of the sists who have considering plans to the number of the sists who have considering the sists who have considering the sists who have considered to said that the 100,000 mark has been left for behind. The passenger earnings of the Rock Island, for example, increased 40 per cent last July over the same month last year. Most of this is due to the Oklahoma rush, but a large part of it is attributed directly to the Colorado-Utah excursion rates. The Burlington and other roads report big gains, while the monthly earnings of the Union Pacific and Rio Grande roads have shown increases that have at times almost approached the pernomenal. All this has convinced the general passenger agents that Utah and Colorado together make an alluring combination. A proposition is under consideration now to make the low rates a regular ching during the heated periods. Whether this is done or not, the word reaches Sait Lake that Utah and its metropolis are to be advertised during the coming year as never before. The Harriman lines intend to take an active hand in this. If Mr. Harriman approves the recommendations of the officials subordinate to him and builds the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific this subsordinate to him and builds the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific this subsordinate to him and builds the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific this subsordinate to him and builds the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific this subsordinate to him and builds the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific this subsordinate to him and builds the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific this subsordinate to him and builds the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific this subsordinate to him and builds the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific this subsordinate to him

NEW TRAFFIC COMBINE.

Island and Southern Pacific. Fresh competition for the southern Fresh competition for the southern Californic business is in sight. A pending deal to bring it about is significant in that, if consummated, it will divert considerable traffic from the Utah to the Southern route and that it shows closer relations between a Harriman and an ind-pendent line. Local railroad officials have been informed that a close traffic agreement is being negotiated between the Rock Island and the Southern Pacific. This is for a new southern route, which it is proposed to open as soon as the Rock Island completes present extensions. The new route would be the shortest of all between Chicago and Los Angeles.

Should the new deal go through, the Rio Grande roads would be the heaviest losers. At present the Rock Island is delivering practically all its California business to the Rio Grande at Denver. By the new arrangement a large part of this would be sent southward. The Rock Island's summer passenger business would be principally through Utah, as this route has been shown to be particularly attractive to tourists, but an effort would be made to divert the California winter business to the southern route, which would give the Rock Island a longer haul.

During the present year the Rock Island has built over 400 miles of road southwest from Liberal, Kan., and there remains only about 200 miles yet to be built of its new short route to El Paso. It is believed this can be completed in two months. The new route will be via Kansas C'y Liberal and El Paso. The general belief is that the deal for through parsenger service will go through.

CHARLEY MACK, BOSS OF THE UTES,

Charley Mack, who is literally, if not actually, chief of the reservation Indians, who is at the head of the members of the Ute tribe now in the city to give exhibitions at the carnival, and who is an exceptionally intelligent specimen of the American Indian, knew President McKinley. Speaking on that subject yesterday, Mack said he remembered the president well.

"He was a fine man," said he—Mack speaks good English—"a big, smoothfaced man. I liked him much."

It was about two years ago that the distinguished red man met the president. With four of his tribesmen he fourneyed to Washington to inquire of the expulsion of the Indians from the Colorado hunting grounds, an event which has since become a source of disquiption in the friendly relations between poor Lo and his white brothers.

"They treated us well," said Mack, and let us go into the White House and we shook hands with President McKi ey. But we didn't get what we went after. The Indian head man said to fathers used to hunt in Colorado because they had to make a living out of buckskin. We were being kept by the government, he said, so we don't have to hunt over there. I think the Indians have a right to hunt, but I guess we never will in Colorado."

Unlike most men, Charley does not know the place of his birth. He has a fine aggregation of Indians with him—

Washington, Sept. 14.—Of the eight men who entered President McKinley's cabinet at the beginning of nis first administration only three remain. These are Secretary of the Treasury Gage, Secretary of the Navy Long and Secretary of Agriculture Wilson.

The greatest number of changes have taken place in the state department and the department of justice. Three men have served as the head of the state department since the fourth of March, 1897. The first of these was the late John Sherman, who surrendered his place in the senate to become the premier of McKinley's first cabinet. At the outbreak of the Spanish war he retired and was succeeded by Judge William Day of the president's home city, Canton, who when the war closed, city, Canton, who when the war closed, the interior department.

WHY HE WENT HUNTING

FIRMLY BELIEVED THAT M'KIN-LEY WOULD RECOVER.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 14.-When The dore Roosevelt and his guides left the Tahawus club early yesterday morning on a hunting expedition, the vice president fully believed that President Mc-Kinley was out of danger and on the rapid road to recovery. The hunting party moved in the direction of Mount Marcy, the highest peak in the Adiron-dack region. They had not been gone over three hours when a mounted cour-

When Colonel Rooseveit was reached and informed of the critical condition of the president he could scarcely believe the burden of the messages personally delivered to him. Startled at the serious nature of the news, the vice president at 5:45 o'clock at once started back for the Tahawus club. In the meantime the Adirondack stage line placed at his disposal relays of horses covering the thirty-five miles to North Creek. A deluging thunderstorm had rendered the roads unusually heavy. Without any delay he

Soon after Colonel T.

Soon after Colonel T.

Soon after Colonel Roosevelt started, night came on and made the trip very difficult and dangerous, as mile after mile was traveied in almost impenetrable darkness, but the expert guides piloted the vice president safely to his objective point.

Not until he dashed up to the special train at North Creek at 5:22 o'clock this morning did he learn that the president had passed away at Buffalo at 2:15 o'clock. Mr. Loeb, Colonel Roosevelt's steretary, was the first to break the news to him. The new president was visibly affected by the intelligence and expressed a desire to reach Buffalo as soon as possible.

Within one minute after his arrival at North Creek he boarded the special train, which at once pulled out in the direction of Buffalo, via Saratoga and Albany. He did not complain of fatigue, but looked somewhat pale and careworn.
